Moments To

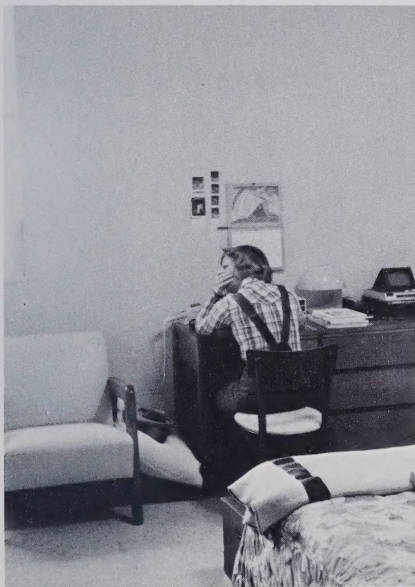

Memories are heartbeats
Sounding through the years,
Echoes never fading
Of our smiles and tears.

Moments that are captured
Sometimes unaware,
Pictured in an album
Or in a lock of hair.

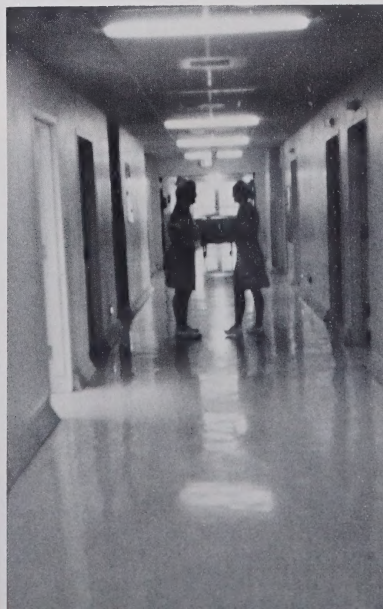

Remember

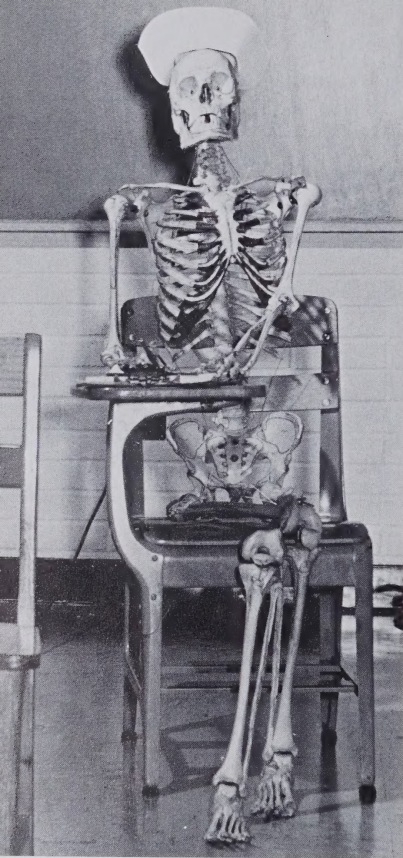

Through the musty hallways
Of the days we knew,
Ever comes the vision
Beautiful and true.

Images that linger

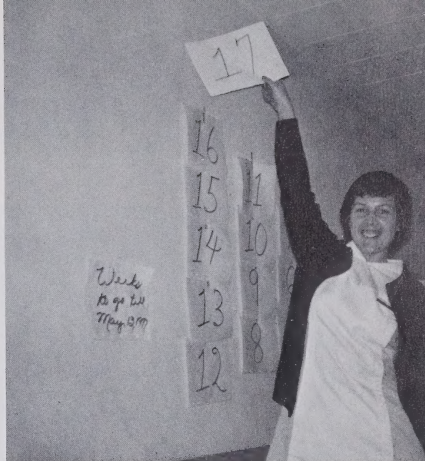

Deep within the mind,
Bit of verse we cherished
Once upon a time.

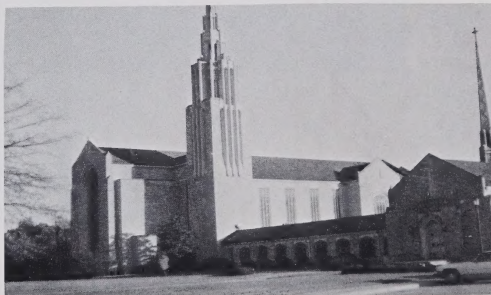

Memories are roses
Blooming evermore,
Full of fragrant sweetness
Never know before.

Life must have a meaning
Goals for which to strive,
Memories are lights that burn
To keep the heart alive.

In Dedication

One day, a lady came to our school and entered our lives. She became involved in every facet of activity here, giving of herself and her time. From advising us with Student Government to "warm fuzzies" at Butner, she touched each life here.

She brought us some new ideas and taught us a new, fresh way of nursing. As we begin nursing, she will be remembered as the kind of nurse each of us would strive to be.

Thank you for all you've done. We love you, Ms. Beckie Knight.

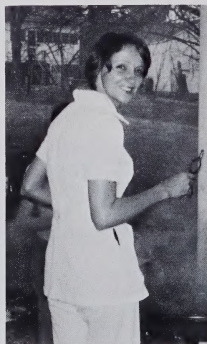

They may not need me; but they might.

I'll let my head be just in sight;

A smile as small as mine might be

Precisely their necessity.

Emily Dickinson

To the Faculty and Staff of H.P.M.H. School of Nursing:

Many times we've consulted you and you have helped. We will remember you all and the knowledge you have given us as we begin our career in nursing.

Much love and thanks,
The Class of 1977

In Memoriam

Dr. Brenda Kay Williams
1926-1976

"Kindness is more important than the hurley-burley."

Dr. Kay Williams grew up in Zebulon, N.C. and graduated from Bowman Gray School of Medicine in 1952. She interned at many hospitals in the nation. In 1958, she began a private practice in High Point. She was a wonderful person with great compassion and understanding for humanity. She was generous with time and money and was also concerned about the welfare of others. Dr. Williams was affiliated with many local, state, and national medical organizations, but her most important affiliation was with Jesus Christ.

Sometimes

Sometimes, not often enough,
 We reflect upon the good things
 And those thoughts always center around around those we love
 And I think about those people who mean so much to me
 And for so many years have made me so very happy
 And I count the times I have forgotten to say
 "thank you"
 And just how much I love them.

NURSE

The devil full of evil glee,
With all his devilish ease,
For mankind brewed a potion
And labeled it disease.
Then out of the depths of his hatred
And out of his deep disdain,
He mixed a wicked powder
And this he labeled pain.
Then God made a lovely creature
To counteract the curse
And when he had her finished,
He simply called her Nurse.

PHYSICIANS

As freshmen, we stood in awe when they passed in the hall; as Juniors, we found out little idiosyncrasies of some; and now as Seniors, we are able to still hold great respect for them, yet feel at ease because we realize too, that they each have their own unique personalities. Now as we branch out to other hospitals, we carry with us what we have learned from these doctors and we realize that always there will be a special place with us for the doctors of High Point Memorial Hospital.

THE NIGHT THE LIGHTS WENT OUT

In the little town of High Point there were some student nurses who wanted very much to have a Spring prom. They worked really hard while at Butler making hula girls, treasure chests, and other various decorations. Afterwards, they vigorously scrubbed the carpets and the walls that had been splattered with paint. And then they had to lug all of this back to High Point in the back of an El Camino in pouring down rain.

That Friday afternoon, several of the girls got together in the Nutrition Lab at school to prepare the refreshments. The morning of the prom was spent decorating the Moose Lodge.

Little did they expect the surprise that was awaiting them that evening. Everyone had gone all out to look their best, but for what?! When they got there with their dates, there were no lights, no electricity, no nothing, all because of a dumb old storm.

An hour and a half was spent by romantic candlelight while musicians tried to raise their spirits by singing without microphones and shaking tambourines. Fortunately, the lights did come back on and everything got under way as planned.

GRADUATION!

What Is a Student Nurse?

Student nurse: patients love her, doctors tolerate her, surgeons scream at her, instructors hide from her, head nurses ignore her, housemothers pray for her, Heaven helps her, and mothers love her.

Student nurse: no one else can give nine complete baths, five SS enemas, one hundred and twenty-three injections, lose seven Bic pens, fill eighteen croupettes, take twenty-five a.m. TPR's, and emotionally support seventeen women patients in one day and still get along with her roommate.

Student nurse: she is so darling with Demerol in her hair, Solu-B down her uniform, hot coffee in her shoes, bathroom tissue in her pocket, fruit gum on her medicine tray and Betadine nail polish. She is the picture of love to the geriatric patient, wisdom with a pile of worksheets, "our baby" to Mom and Dad, and the future with a newborn in her still childish arms.

No one on earth loves weekends more, has such an enormous appetite, gets blamed for so many things, faces so many empty mailboxes, and can still tolerate lettuce and round pieces of "meat" for dinner.

No one else can sleep through class, pretend to enjoy a guest lecture, fail so many pop tests, write so many bibliographies on unread articles, avoid so many library fines nor receive so many handouts. She does all this and then ends up at Butner where she talks carefully, lives on McDonald's hamburgers, yells at cows, is the "queen" at patient dances, walks the estate daily and during all this, checks for her keys hundred times.

She comes in dead tired with aching feet and weak hands, yet stays up as late as possible, then tells everyone good-night, gives her shoes a swab, crawls into a half-made bed full of stuffed animals, paper clips, and popcorn kernels, sets her clock for 5:30 a.m. and says, "don't forget to check in on me in the morning."

She came a girl, she leaves a woman; she came a teen, she leaves a young adult; she came untrained, she leaves a professional; she came for herself, she leaves for others; she came with love and she leaves . . . a nurse.

OBSTETRICS

O.B. is —

Giving 9:00 meds by 8:30.

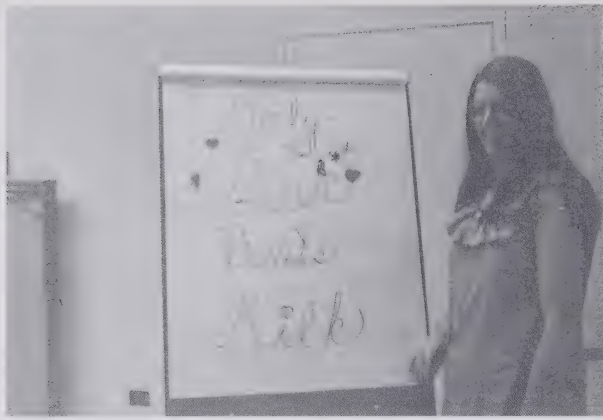

Singing to an infant when you can't carry a tune.

Checking the fetal heart rate when you can't count that fast.

Doing your drug sheets and study guides in the first few weeks in hopes to get ahead, but finding out you're still behind.

Watching the fathers turn pale as a sheet while their wives are doing all the work.

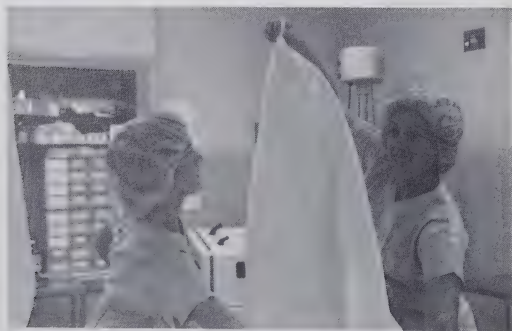

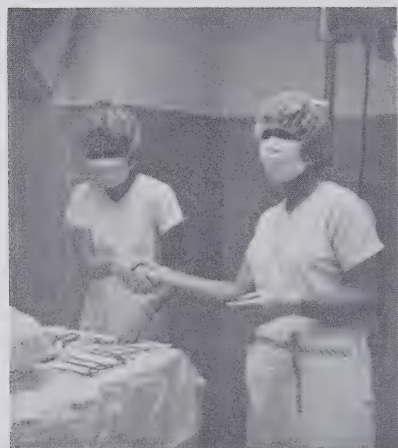

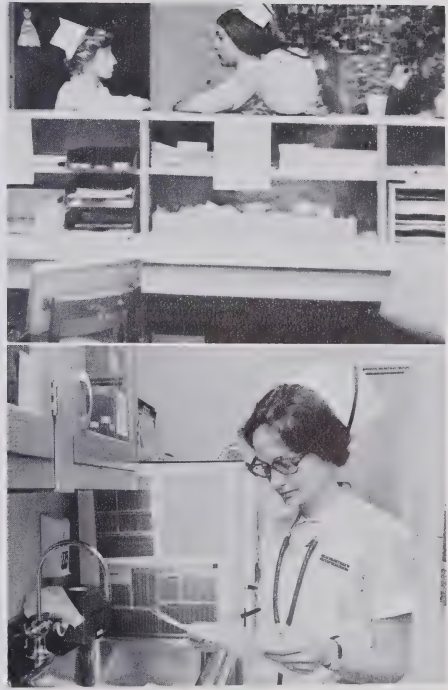

OPERATING ROOM

O.R. is —
Having your nose itch during an entire case.
I'm going to take your blood pressure now, take a deep breath.
Holding retractors until you think your arm is about to fall off.
Learning not to take criticism personally.
D&C's, laparoscopic tubals, and hysterectomies.
Scrubbing for 10 minutes to find that you forgot to put your mask on.

PEDIATRICS

PEDIATRICS is —
Getting off the floor totally exhausted,
but not from work, but from playing.
Instantly becoming a mother.
Fighting with the cribsides.
T & A's.
Changing the sheets in O.R.
Learning how to be a child all over again.
Ice cream and milkshakes.
Taking at least TWO people for ONE injection.
Runny noses.
A pinworm epidemic.

Friends With You

What a friend we have in time,
Gives us children, makes us wine.
Tells us what to take or leave behind.

And the gifts of growing old
Are the stories to be told
Of the feelings more precious than gold.

Friends, I will remember you,
Think of you,
Pray for you.
And when another day is through
I'll still be Friends With You.

Baby's days are never long.
Mother's laugh is baby's song,
Gives us all hope to carry on.

Friends, I will remember you,
Think of you,
Pray for you.
And when another day is through
I'll still be Friends With You.

My friends, I will remember you,
Think of you,
Pray for you.
And when another day is through
I'll still be Friends With You.
